2018 Provisional Troop at Camp Pigott or Camp Parsons

Lone Boy Scouts Can Go to Camp!

Boy Scouts can go to summer camp without their troop! A provisional camper is a Boy Scout who wishes to attend camp as an individual because he cannot attend with his troop, or wants to have an additional week of camp. A Provisional Troop is organized under the direction of trained adult leadership and participates fully in all camp activities. The Scout only needs to bring his personal gear and a desire to work and cooperate with other Scouts.

More About Camp

Whether your Provisional Scout chooses Camp Pigott or Camp Parsons, they will have a great experience! Activities at these traditional Boy Scout camps range from the COPE course, mountain bike skills course and shotgun range at Camp Pigott to the open salt water aquatics activities, climbing tower and shooting ranges of Camp Parsons, to name a few. Provisional Scouts will participate in all the activities a regular troop does.

Both camps provide supervision and many advancement opportunities for lone Scouts, as well as facilities such as tents or shelters, showers, flush toilets and a trading post.
